

DO YOU KNOW A DENTAL HYGIENE SUPERHERO?

Sponsored by:

Elizabeth Jones, RDH, BSc

North Vancouver, BC

Elizabeth says that, as a child, she had an ABOMINABLE dentist! Luckily, she found a new one before it was too late. She realized then that she could have had a different result if she had had the knowledge to make better oral health choices. This became her mantra for her clients: “You can’t ask what you don’t know.”

Elizabeth has worked as a dental hygienist in Switzerland, the United States, and Canada. She has owned and operated her independent practice, Elizabeth Jones Dental Hygiene Clinic, in North Vancouver, BC, for 10 years. She has become the resource and guiding hand to a healthy mouth, empowering her clients and including them in decisions that will lead to a positive oral health outcome. There is no shame or scolding, but rather conversations about how they think they can accomplish their goal. Elizabeth’s clients often refer to her as their restart button. It has been incredibly rewarding for her to see clients who are enthusiastic and happy to see her. It is what keeps her going. Their genuine gratitude reminds her why she goes the extra mile. It was great for her to read what her clients wrote about her for this amazing contest. That was the best gift of all, she says.
