Dental Hygienists Take Your Oral Health to Heart

February 21, 2017 (Ottawa, ON) — February is Heart Month in Canada and a perfect opportunity to raise awareness of the risks of cardiovascular (heart) disease and stroke and the importance of making better lifestyle choices for optimal health. Dental hygienists are strong supporters of this public education campaign and remind Canadians not to overlook their oral health when seeking to improve their physical well-being.

According to the Heart and Stroke Foundation of Canada, 80% of cases of premature cardiovascular disease and stroke are preventable through healthy living, eating, and daily habits. While many of us think that the worst outcome of poor dental hygiene is tooth loss, research suggests that poor oral health may increase your risk for cardiovascular disease and stroke, which now take one life every 7 minutes in Canada. As Canadian Dental Hygienists Association (CDHA) President Gerry Cool explains, “There are millions of bacteria in the mouth. Ignoring oral health routines can lead to inflammation, causing these bacteria to grow and spread at alarming rates, even into the bloodstream, which may contribute to hardening of the arteries.”

Your dental hygienist will work with you during regular appointments to develop a good oral health care plan, and will screen for hypertension and other known risk factors for cardiovascular disease (such as smoking), encouraging those at greater risk to seek appropriate medical attention. In between dental visits, you can work to control the growth of bacteria in your mouth and improve your oral and overall health by following five simple steps:

1. Brush your teeth twice a day with fluoride toothpaste.
2. Clean between the teeth and rinse with an antiseptic mouthwash daily.
3. Eat healthy foods and avoid sugary treats.
4. Eliminate tobacco use.
5. Visit your dental hygienist regularly.

Dental hygienists—your partners in prevention—urge all Canadians to take oral health to heart this February and throughout the year.

Serving the profession since 1963, CDHA is the collective national voice of more than 28,495 registered dental hygienists working in Canada, directly representing 18,000 individual members including dental hygienists and students. Dental hygiene is the sixth largest registered health profession in Canada with professionals working in a variety of settings, including independent dental hygiene practice, with people of all ages, addressing issues related to oral health.
